

Los Angeles
County
Arboretum
Vol. II

June 2011

Aloe bainesii
Boomaalwyn
Aloe family
South Africa

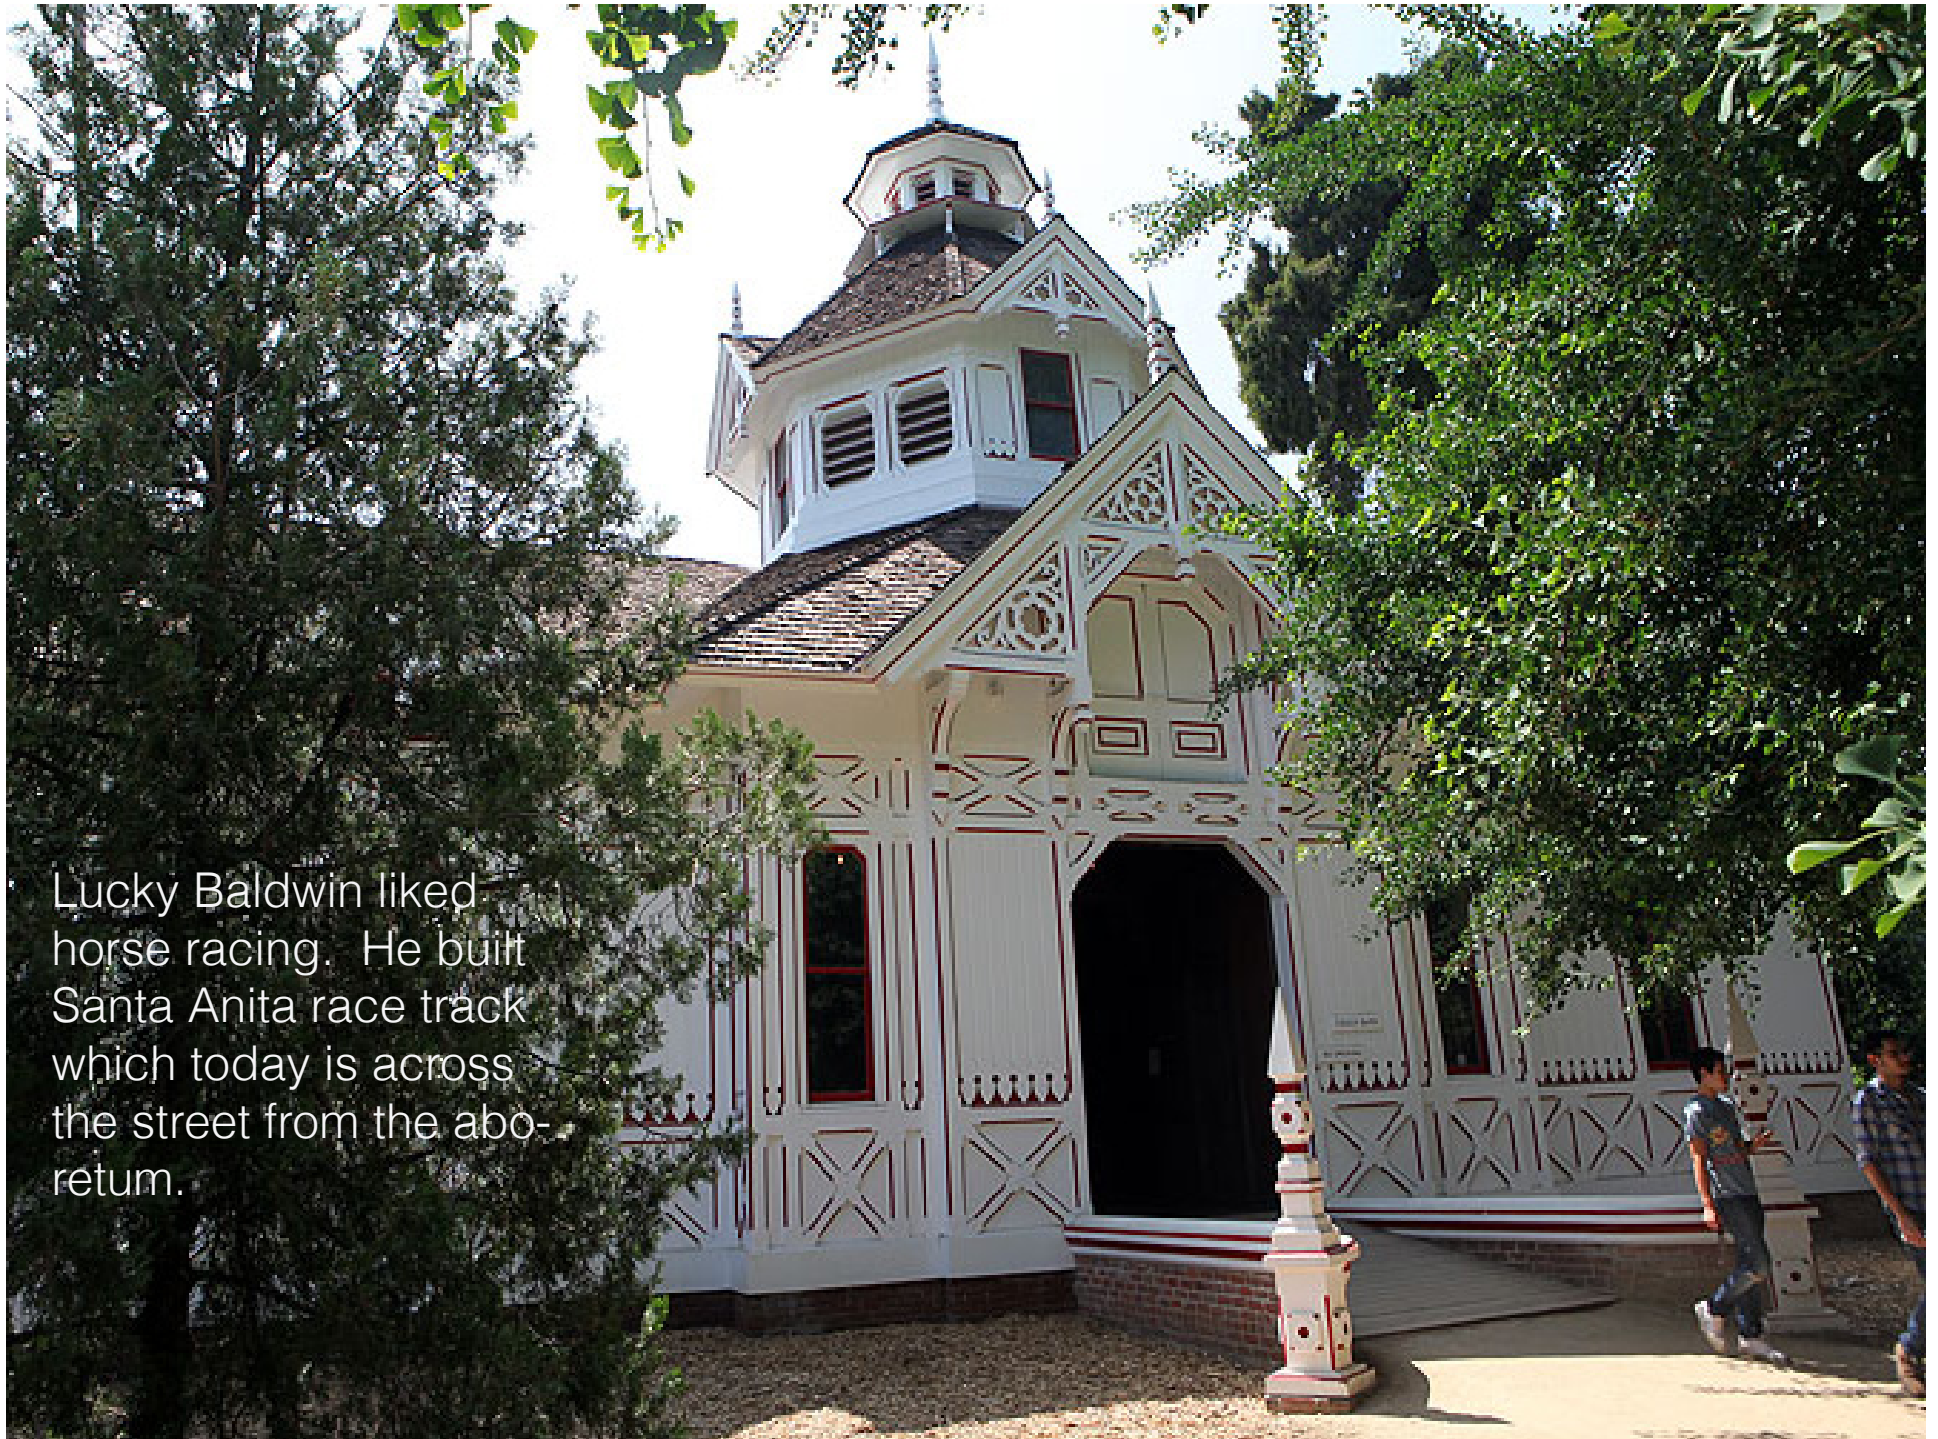

The rancho was developed when Elias
“Lucky” Baldwin took ownership.

Lucky Baldwin liked horse racing. He built Santa Anita race track which today is across the street from the aboretum.

This is the house Lucky built for his fourth wife.

The Reid Adobe in 2010. Compare with the photos later on that were taken in 2002.

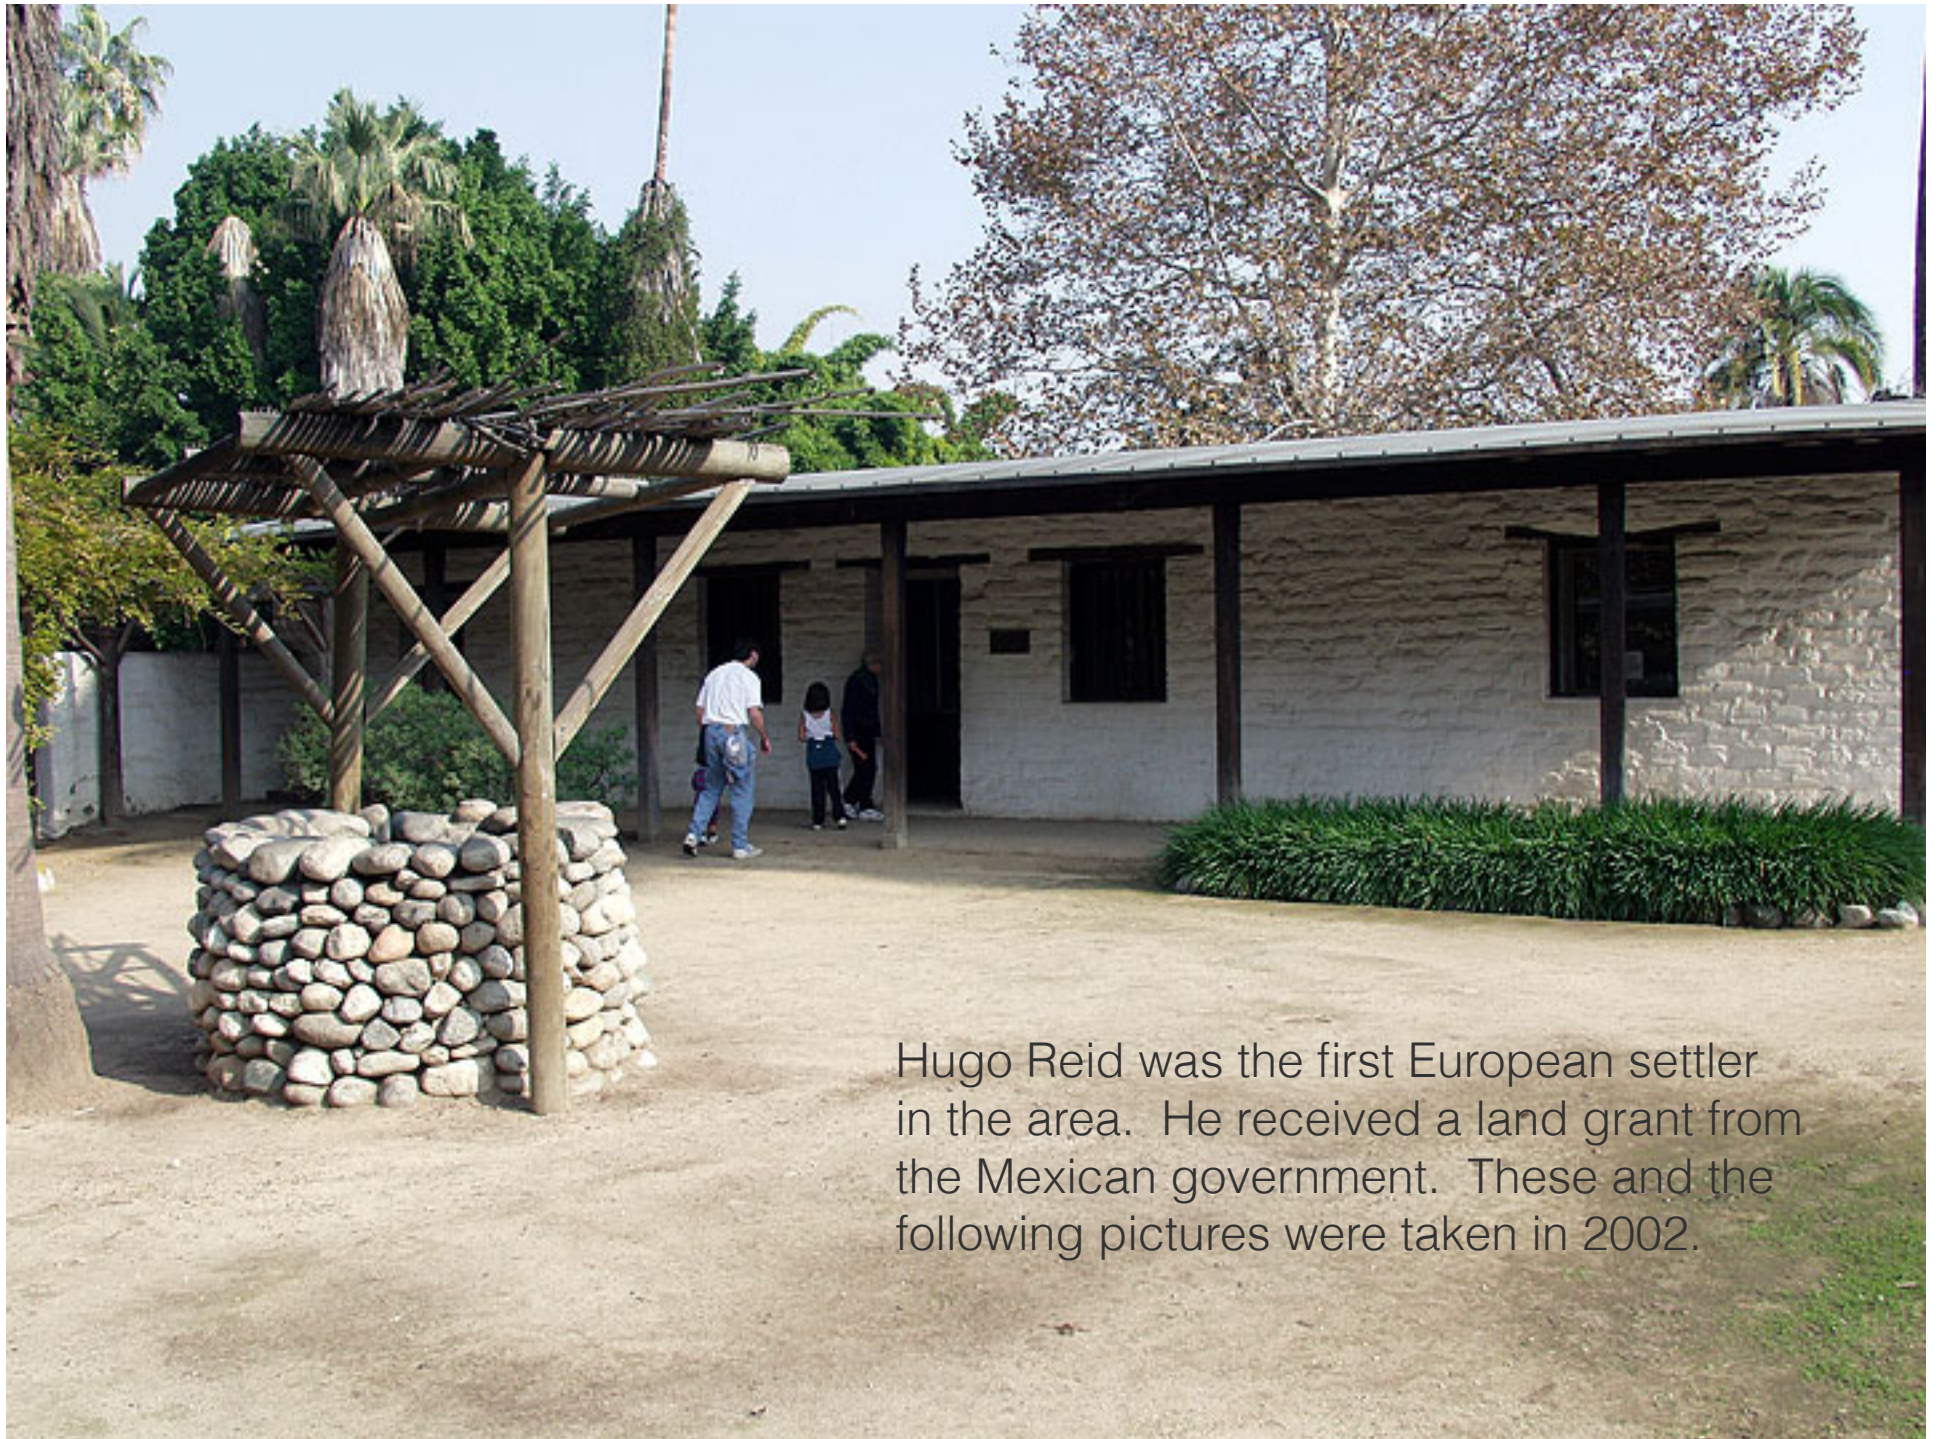

Hugo Reid was the first European settler in the area. He received a land grant from the Mexican government. These and the following pictures were taken in 2002.

The gate to the Reid Adobe. The wall wasn't there in 2011.

The garden has 180 species of aloe.

That's Santa Anita Racetrack in the distance.